I will always remember Mrs. Alexander as the neighborhood mom whose doors, table and heart was open to all of us. It was my home away from home and I will always treasure the love she gave to me. She was one special lady whose giving never ran out. Lots of good memories, but one that I especially remember was the night Carol and I decided to try our first taste of beer at a party. When we came in late, giggling non-stop, Mrs. Alexander came in the bedroom and immediately said "You girls have been drinking!". OMG, I was trying so hard to hold my breath, but she had an incredibly good sense of smell or an incredibly good sense of mothering. She then told us to get to bed! The next morning she woke us up very early and gave us "chores" to do. I remember feeling bad, but very glad that she didn't make us feel any worse than I already did. A house full of her own six kids, her nephew and the rest of the neighborhood - yes, that was Mrs. Alexander to me. Just full of love and laughter. Oh yes! The ham sandwiches. How plentiful they were and how they filled an empty stomach. Now I will treasure having had her in my life, keep her Christmas cards and let gratitude and memories soothe the loss of her passing. I love you, Mrs. Alexander! You were a God-send on many occasions!

Grandma's love was unconditional and always present. Her house was always a safe place in a sometimes difficult world, a place you knew you were going to get a hug, a kiss, a happy laugh and a big southern meal. She was not rich, traveled, worldly, but she was happy. What other people strive for, came naturally to her. To love others, to serve them and to enjoy just being alive. She had this whole life thing all figured out. I miss her and know if there is a heaven, she is there, giving everyone hugs and telling everyone how much she loves them. Rest in Peace Grandma, I Love You. -David Paul

My Grandmother was such a beautiful woman. Her smile, her beautiful hazel eyes and laugh could cheer me up when I was down. She always knew how to make all of her grandchildren feel special and truly loved. There was not one day in her life where she thought of herself first. Her heart truly belonged to her family and it showed. She had a beautiful singing voice that lit my heart up when I heard it. She loved having the whole family home for Christmas, eating chunk cheese, beef stew, ham sandwiches and she always had a secret stash of snickers... that of course my cousins Bryan and Kevin found! She would joke that she was going to get a switch and get us all. My beautiful grandma, Margie, forever shaped my life and contributed to my wonderful childhood memories in a way that is and always going to be engraved in my heart and soul. I LOVE you Grandma and you are the best grandmother. Thank you for always loving and supporting all of us in a way that no other grandmother could. Love Always your granddaughter Jessica.
