Paul Day posted:

Keith was one of the kindest people I've known. Strong of conviction, but an ear of possibility and understanding. His laughter and nature to be better and do better putting others ahead was not uncommon. His lighthearted spirit led those to take only what you need seriously and not everything in life as it's too short to worry about everything all the time. Just be kind and honest the rest will fall into place. Hold beliefs but be humble that one may not believe in the correct things. Have faith that tomorrow will always be better and learn from today. Everyday you can be a different person making ya new in town...bran spankin' ..rest easy my friend.
